> ·FRAGRANT WATERS' MURMUR That I have been besieged with queries why the Post Office Department do not issue 7.cent stamps for the convenience of the

not be denied that a certain inherited predisposition is necessary for its growth.

That it has been replied, of late, that the public exist for the convenience of the Post Office, and that no reforms can be looked for.

That I am not quite ready to accept this explanation, unless it be shown to a demonstration that the higher authorities of the local Government have given up all supervision of the G. P. O.

That, by Gum! it is bad enough to have no gum to your stamps, but it is far worse to have no proper stamps to be gummed.

That to deny the residents of Hongkong of a 7-cent stamp, when that stamp is always in demand, is not only unpostmanlike, but is one of those things which rub up against a community even more than would a more actious grievance.

That people naturally argue that the affairs of the G. P. O. are left to go anyhow, and have no proper supervision from the higher authorities.

That it would be perhaps a matter of too simple a nature to surcharge 5-cent. stamps so as to convert them into stamps of 7-cents value.

That the residents, even those who are not collecting stamps, would be glad to see something done to meet the requirements of the homeward mails.

That the speech of Mr Chater, on his reelection as representative of the J. P. on the Legislative Council, was both modest and manly.

That it was modest us to his work as an M. L. C., and manly as to his programme of the future action.

That although I cannot quite agree with the Hon. Member as to the small powers of the unofficial members—even the Secretary of State looked forward to their resignation bringing about a constitutional crisis there is no question their action has had its effect in more ways than one.

That it may be looked upon as inconvenient or risky for them to resign their seats on the Council, aithough I fail to see where the risk comes in, and it goes without saying they have missed more than one opportunity of gaining their point by

That there may be something more in Mr Chater's remarks than at first appears. about the increase in the unofficial representation in the Council, as I hear the Governor is not unfavourable to a modiffication of the 'official phalanx.'

That the 'official phalaux' has always seemed to me to be an unnecessary of bluff in a Colony where the veto of the Crown is always supreme, and it would borno great stretch of constitutional law to give the Hongkong Council an unofficial majority.

That the tendency which the Governor has to favour this view is shown by his readiness to adopt the suggestion lately put forward in the Report of the Signalling That body suggested the nomination or pointment of three merchants engaged in the shipping interest to assist the Harbour Master in all matters affecting shipping matters in this great maritime emporium, That three gentlemen have been named by the Chamber of Commerce for this neces sary duty, and if the gentlemen named (Messra Dodwell, H. CHINA'S RAILWAYS. The general public knows only one Chinese railway, says the Japan Mail, namely the line that connects Tientsin with Tongtends to Kungchow, at the Kaiping coal mines. Thence the road has been carried as far as Shanhaikwan, and work is also progress beyond the Great Wall, the ob jective point being Kwanchinsa, whence system of strategical lines is to be pushe out for establishing communications wi Manchuris. But of the railway on northern side of Kungohow. very little known. Indeed, by the Chinese themselves a nominal distinction is made between the Shanhaikwan sections, the former being called the China Merchants' line, and the latter the Imperial Railway. The significance of this distinction is that the road from Tientsin to the oual mines of Kaining was constructed for the ordinary purposes of a railway, namely, to carry passons and goods, whereas the line passing to the north of the mines is a military enterprise, intended to bring Manchuria within strategical reach of China proper. The correctly be described as the Li line. it virtually owes its inception and tinued construction to the sagacity successive 4s off Mast. Lammert scored a the great Vicercy. I'm able to pay for it. In the tithe war of 1831 Mr Le Fanu was a witness of some stirring and even murderous spenes. He and his party had a narrow escape in Limerick, where they were stoned by a savage crowd, and, pistol in hand, had to ride for their lives :-

As we neared our house we met a funeral, headed by the Roman Catholic curate of the parish. We rade up to him, covered as we and our horses were with mud and blood, in the vain hope that he would say some words of exhortation to the people, "Sec," we said, " Father M., how we have been treated when we were on a peaceful and friendly mission to some of your flock." "I suppose," said he, "ye were unwelcome visitors." "Is that any reason," said I, "that they should try to murder us?" "It's no business of mine," said he, and passed on.' One of the Fellows of Trinity College, Dublin, commonly known as Jackey Barrett, was, we are fold, equally famous as a miser and a Hebrew scholar :-

· He dined at Commons; his only other meal was his breakfast, consisting of a penny losf and a half-pennyworth of milk. Every morning he handed a halfpenny to the old woman who looked after his rooms, and sent her out to buy the milk. One frosty morning she slipped, fell, and broke her leg. She was taken to a hospital, and for once Barrett ventured beyond the college precincts, and went to see her. "Well, Mary." he said to her, "do you see
